Why me?

- A Master degree does not mean just learning skills and competences. We all know this. But this is not so obvious outside of business schools. With my candidacy I am committed to increasing the knowledge of what is the true value of Master's courses at MIB School of Management, involving both the industry and the main head hunters, to create an effective network that allows alumni to take advantage of their experience and knowledge at a professional level.
- In the classroom, we shared our ideas and visions within us and with professionals from different areas. I would like to take these opportunities out of the classroom, in meetings and in round tables where we can discuss with colleagues and experts of different topics, where you can dialogue and propose solutions. Not a lecture or a conference, but a time for sharing ideas that brings value to all participants.
- I would like to create an online database with the profiles of all alumni, to highlight the skills learned, your experiences, expectations and interests through interviews and personal stories.
