

Connecting People, Sharing Knowledge, Empowering Leadership

Nicoletta Laurenti Collino

My Background

My professional journey has developed across different but increasingly interconnected fields.

I started from a legal and academic background, graduating in Law, completing a second-level Master's degree in Parliamentary Institutions and later earning a PhD in Legal Sciences with a focus on Public Law. Alongside this academic path, I gained early professional and institutional experience through an internship with a Regional Administration and a research assignment at the Italian Council of State, while also being involved in academic journals, associations, conferences and other research-related activities.

The MBA in International Business at MIB Trieste School of Management represented a turning point in my career, allowing me to complement my academic background with a business and international perspective and transition into the corporate world.

Today, I work in the field of digital resilience, combining governance, risk, technology and international stakeholder management.

This interdisciplinary journey has shaped the contribution I would like to bring to the MIB Alumni Association: connecting people, professional experiences and different areas of knowledge, turning diversity into value for the community.

My Vision

I believe that the greatest asset of the MIB Alumni Association is its community: professionals from different countries, industries, generations and backgrounds.

My proposal is therefore built around three complementary dimensions: People, Knowledge and Leadership.

1. PEOPLE – MIB Alumni Global Exchange: Turning the MIB network into an accessible professional ecosystem.

MIB Alumni Global Exchange would make it easier for members to discover and connect with each other according to country, industry, professional background and expertise.

The aim is to create a dynamic internal network where Alumni can identify relevant contacts, exchange professional insights, explore career and business opportunities, share selected job opportunities and connect with members working in specific markets or sectors.

The ultimate goal is not simply to create another social network, but to make the MIB network itself a practical professional asset.

2. KNOWLEDGE – MIB Alumni Knowledge Hub: Transforming individual expertise into shared community knowledge.

The MIB Alumni community represents an extraordinary source of knowledge developed across companies, institutions, professions, entrepreneurship and different international environments.

The MIB Alumni Knowledge Hub would create a space where this expertise can be shared across disciplines and generations through short articles, industry insights, Alumni talks, interviews, case studies, podcasts and discussions on emerging trends.

Topics could range from technology, AI and digital transformation to finance, sustainability, regulation, geopolitics, entrepreneurship and leadership, reflecting the diversity of the Alumni community itself.

The Alumni community would become not only a network of professionals, but also a network of knowledge.

3. LEADERSHIP – MIB Women in Business & Leadership: Connecting experiences, perspectives and generations of MIB women.

MIB Women in Business & Leadership would create a dedicated space for women within the Alumni community to connect across industries, countries, professional roles and career stages.

The initiative would focus primarily on peer-to-peer exchange, fostering opportunities for women to share experiences and perspectives on leadership, professional growth, international careers, professional transitions and other challenges encountered throughout professional life.

The objective is to build meaningful professional connections and enable different experiences and generations of MIB women to enrich one another.

What I Would Bring to the MIB Alumni Association

- 1. Governance & Strategic Planning: A structured approach to complex issues developed through my legal, academic and corporate experience, with a strong focus on governance, accountability and long-term thinking.
- 2. Digital Transformation, Risk & Resilience: Professional experience at the intersection of technology, risk and organisational resilience, bringing a perspective focused on innovation.
- 3. International Networking & Stakeholder Management: Experience working across different professional environments and with international stakeholders, with a strong interest in connecting people, perspectives and expertise around common objectives.

Looking Ahead

My ambition is to contribute to a MIB Alumni Association where people, knowledge and opportunities create lasting value for its members.
